

Dear FCC Professional,
The FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.

Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved my family's time at home. My family and I are no longer annoyed by irritating solicitors who call at the most inappropriate times.

Indiana's law has been quite effective.
I used to receive 12 to 16 unwanted calls per week, now I might receive one ever other week. I would not want to this situation to revert back to what it was prior to the enactment of Indiana's law.

Annoying solicitors, with no concern for the personal privacy of the people they call, are doing no less than trespassing in the private lives of those they are trying to con out of their money. Weakening the Indiana law would only empower those who prey on other people's private time.

My family and I implore you to save the Indiana law.
If indeed that cannot happen, then at least be sure to enact rules as strong and broad as the Indiana law.
Thank You,
William Troutman
